

ABSTRACT

A product and process for the immediate removal of odors from materials, and the prevention of the production of additional odors over extended periods of time. Oxides are combined with nitrates. The oxides get rid of the existing odors and the nitrates keep the system aerobic; which keeps the production of new odors from forming.

wegner\application-20001-cip